Dear Uncle

These lines will <sup>be</sup> handed to you, by my Uncle Mr. James D. Stout, who is very desirous of seeing you, and has always felt interested for us since he ~~has~~ has been connected in the family, and very much respected in this City, he sails for Europe with an intention of visiting London before he returns, It would be very gratifying, indeed, to us, to hear from any of my dear Father's friends, and also feel very grateful for your interested feelings <sup>expressed</sup> towards us in your letter to Mr. Holders but the impressions you were under that he brought us up are incorrect he never has had the least care of us, excepting my brother Robert whom he adopted as a son, <sup>and</sup> is now writing in a lawyer office, we have both written, but probably, the letters never reached you, I have been under the care of my <sup>now Mr. J. D. Stout.</sup> Aunt, who has acted the part of a mother to me she has taught me to get my living by sewing, for which I shall always feel grateful for, since my Aunt was married. I have lived with my Grandmother, who is very old and infirm, my Sister Matilda, the youngest of the three is living with Mr. Wilclys family a lawyer, in this city, we all have different homes, ~~but~~ but we see each other frequently, we all join our love to you all, and ~~with~~ I remain your affectionate Niece

Mary Mott to Julius:

New York, May the 14th, 1826

Dear Uncle,

These lines will be handed to you by my Uncle, Mr. James D. Stout, who is very desirous of seeing you and has always felt interested for us since he has been connected in the family, and very much respected in this city.

He sails for Europe with the intention of visiting London before he returns. It would be very gratifying indeed to us to hear from any of my dear Father's friends, and also feel very grateful for your interested feelings expressed towards us in your letter to Mr. Holden, but the impressions you were under that he brought us up are incorrect, he never has had the least care of us, excepting my brother Robert whom he adopted as a son and is now writing in a lawyer office. We have both written but probably the letters never reached you. I have been under the care of my Aunt, now Mrs. J.D. Stout, who has acted the part of a mother to me. She has taught me to get my living by sewing, for which I shall always feel grateful.

Since my Aunt was married I have lived with my Grandmother, who is very old and infirm. My sister Matilda, the youngest of the three, is living with Mr. Wildys family, a lawyer in this city. We all have different homes, but we see each other frequently.

We all join our love to you all, and remain your affectionate Niece,

Mary H. Mott
